

George Schoening

George married Lottie Hall, for as long as I remember he lived in Colorado, and from what I recall he grew apples for a living, must have been fair size orchard.

Know that my brother Leo visited them one time, when he came home, his suitcase was half filled with ten of the most beautiful red apples you ever saw.

Can remember them making one trip to Paducah when Glynn (son) was about 16, at that time the song. ("Yes We Have No Bananas Today") was very popular, and I remember Glynn playing it on the piano, he really jazzed it up.

Uncle George died of cancer, he came to Paducah to have the operation for it, this was about 1943, he didn't live too long after the operation, in fact he died in the hospital there.

Glynn married Millie ?. For a lot of years they lived in Loveland Colorado. They now live in Salt Lake City. They have two daughters, both married with families.

Millie worked for a dentist in Loveland.

Aunt Lottie remarried after Uncle George died, neither Mom or Aunt Velma was very happy about it, but I told them she still had a life to live.
